A'Te Deum for Wheeling.

So much has been said complimentary to Wheeling in connection with the recent session of the West Virginia Press Associa tion, that it is difficult to add anything by way of praise. We desire to say, howeve that all the compliments bestowed are just and proper. Wheeling is entitled to every one of them. The newspaper men of the city are genial, liberal, unsellish and hospitable. They have never left anything undone, which would make their visiting brethren feel welcome. To them the success of the Press Association is largely due. The business men of Wheeling are remarkable for their generosity. No appeal that touches their pocket-books, is ever made in vain. A good way to test a man's heart and soul, is to assail his pocket-book. The business men of Wheeling, we are happy to say, have always stood the test nobly. Thanks to Wheeling. The writer of this has a host of friends there. In no place away from his own door, does he ever leel as much at home, as in the wealthy growing city of Wheeling; a place of flourishing newspapers, grand dning tables, prosperious manufactories, excellent schools, good lawyers, able preachers, first-class physicians, wide-awake merchants, and intelligent people. So again, thanks to Wheeling for its kindly welcome and gracious hospitality. city are genial, liberal, unselfish and hos

WE sincerely rejoice that Bro. J. W Holt, of the Grafton Sentinel, has resigned his position in the postal service, and will again devote his attention exclusively to his paper. He is very much missed by the newspiaper fraternity in this State, when absent from the place he fills so well and gracefully. We hope he will not soon again even temporarily abandon the position for which he is so thoroughly fitted.—

arouse him, Giles, who was also intoxicated, remarked that he could wake him up, and instantly pulled a revolver and commenced firing at Itoane. One of the halls took effect in Roane's head, and inflicted a wound that is supposed to be fatal. Constable J. N. Butcher, who was hastily summoned, arrested Giles, whom he found askeep on the track a short distance from the scene of the afray, and took him to the county jail, where he now lays awaiting the result of Roane's injuries.

The correspondent of the Register in yesterday's edition, in reporting the supposed shooting of young Falconer, seems to have made some misstatements in regard to the fact. He was not found dead on the pike as reported, but died at home. It was not until after his death that any suspicions of foul play were aroused. The coroner's jury still have the matter under investigation and we defer expressing any opinion until after their verdict.

In 1831 the Oriole display was purely experimental; and owing to the experience of those who had the affair in charge the result was very far from being as brilliant or successful as had been anticipated, though money was not wanting to zecure far different ends had it been properly applied. Since then, however, the Order of the Oriole has been organized on a basis somewhat similar to the
